Q. The Bid document specifies preparation of a case closure request. If the WDNR closure committee closes out the case, well abandonment is typically the next step. Do you want a cost for abandonment of the monitoring wells, piezometer, recovery wells, air sparge wells, and vapor extraction wells included in the bid?

A. No. The bid should only include costs to complete the scope of work (e.g. sampling, the closure request and proper notifications) as specified in the bid document.

However, cost through closure should be included as a part of the closure request document. The costs should be separated into each activity, and then further broken down into consulting and commodity costs. If closure is approved at that time, the costs provided in the closure request would then be reviewed and approved or denied.
