Question: The public bid specs clearly state that bidders must bid on both this site and Kozak's Service Station and subsequently conduct them together. This obviously cuts mobilization costs in half for each bid. However, what will happen if the RP's for each site decide to hire separate consultants? Can you guarantee me that the same consultant will get hired for both sites OR should each work scope be prepared to stand on its own, just in case?

Answer: Both RP's for the sites were contacted and the bidding process was explained to them. Both RP's are on board with the scopes in the bids. Work scopes are to be prepared as specified in the bid spec and are intended to be completed simultaneously not separately.
